Let your adventure begin...

Quality for all it means... Since 1967

Back in 1958, Ray Frank started a brand new industry when he built an all-weather travel vehicle for his family - and he called it a motor home.

Responding to the great interest created by this first vehicle, Frank began manufacturing motor homes in a barn near Brown City, Michigan. Both the supply and demand of these motor homes grew tremendously with time..

By 1967, after the original Frank Motor Home Corporation became Travco Division of PRF Industries, Frank started a new company and developed a new idea in motor home design.

He felt the modern traveler wanted a smaller, more compact motor home that would be easier to drive, park and buy. So he developed the "Xplorer 21." The first aerodynamically styled, fully self-contained motor home that would fit in the standard seven-foot garage. It caught the Industry's imagination, made it think small, and established Xplorer as an innovative industry leader.

Today... Xplorer Motor Homes include a range of sizes and styles to suit the tastes and needs of many motor home customers, and all throughout each of our motor homes you'll find the famous Xplorer craftsmanship and attention to detail that have made travel a pleasure for thousands of our customers.
